United States Senator Edward W. Brooke joins other members of the Nixon-Agnew campaign team at the final stop on a tour of regional headquarters across Mass. The tour was conducted last week by Senator John J. Quinlan (left), Chairman of the Mass. United Citizens for Nixon-Agnew, accompanied by other state and national United Citizens leaders. The regional headquarters visited included Lowell, Lawrence, Lynn, Fall River, New Bedford, Worcester, and Springfield. Shown here with Senator Brooke and Senator Quinlan at the Nixon-Agnew Headquarters in Norwood are Mrs. Ruth Vance, Vice-Chairman of the GOP State Committee, and Alfred D. Shea, United Citizens Director of Field Operations.

Safe Halloween Costumes

If costumes are too dark to be seen at night, motorists may have trouble spotting the trick or treaters as they cross the street. And if a child's costume is too long or if he is wearing dad's shoes as part of his disguise, he may trip and injure himself. If a costume is not flame-retardant it may catch on fire—especially since youngsters are likely to forget that a pumpkin with a candle in it is a fire hazard.

To help make Halloween safe and as much fun as possible, the National Safety Council, assisted by the New York Costume Company of Chicago, has designed some Halloween costumes that are fun to wear, easy and inexpensive to make, and safe for youngsters to wear in the home or on the street.

An old pillowcase serves as the basis for these easy-to-make costumes. Slits are cut in the pillowcase for the arms and head, and the basic costume is easily slipped over the youngster's head. The pillowcase can be dyed or decorated to become almost anything the youngster wants: a robin hood shirt-vest, a hillbilly shirt, or an Indian jacket for boys; an Indian maiden outfit or a gypsy dress for girls. Trick or treaters can use their imagination to design and decorate their own costumes.

Before the costume is decorated it should be made flame-retardant so that a candle shining through the face of a jack-o'-lantern or a dropped match isn't the beginning of disaster. To flame-proof a costume, dip it in a solution of 2 quarts of warm water mixed with 7 ounces of borax and 3 ounces of boric acid until it is thoroughly soaked. Let the pillowcase drip dry and then iron it. If the costume is to be dyed, use the flame-proofing solution for the last rinse.

C. William Hall

C. William Hall was named chairman of the Agawam Jaycees "Meet Your Candidate Night", President Jack Lourie said "Because Bill did such an outstanding job as chairman and moderator last year I have asked him to chair it again this year".

Last year at this time the Jaycees sponsored their first "Meet Your Candidate Night" at the High School. Over 700 people came to hear audience submitted questions answered by George, Reynolds, Fred Nardi and Valentine Moreno, who were at that time running for selectman.

No date has been set as yet for this event.

Zundell's Reasons for County C.

Longmeadow Selectman Clifford M. Zundell, who is seeking election to the Hampden County Commission, said today he has two major reasons for opposing the abolition of county government in Mass.

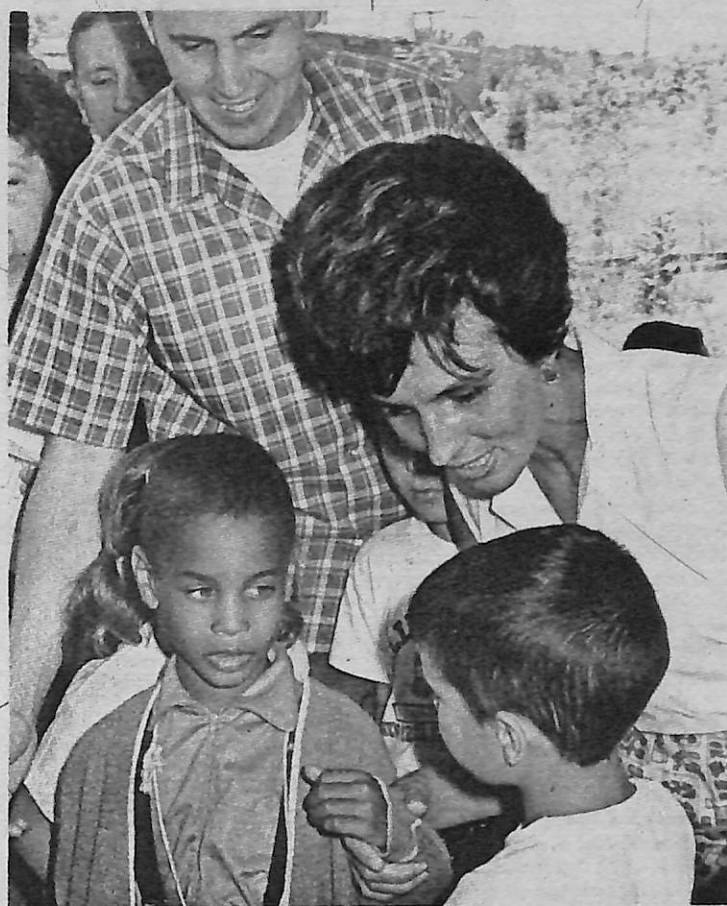

"First, and importantly," Mrs. Zundell said, "if we allow county government to be abolished, we will merely be handing more of the functions of municipal government over to the state, and I don't think there is a thing to be gained by doing this. One significant result of such a move, I am certain, would be a large increase in the cost of the functions now being carried out by county government."

"Second, I know that county government can be awakened to become an effective and forceful coordinating organization among the cities and towns that make up the county."

"I believe that the county commissioners have through the years carried out the duties assigned to them, and no more, without any thought of making the CC a source of imagination and leadership."

"Communications with the selectmen and officials of the 13 towns and four cities of Hampden County have, for the most part, been confined to the annual Chapter 90 hearings which are held routinely each year. There has been no particular effort to stimulate a feeling of coordination and mutual interest between the county and the communities."

"If elected on Nov. 5, one of my major goals will be the activation of the Hampden CC in the interests of the people of the cities and towns who support it and should benefit much more than they do from its activities."

EITHER WAY

Blue salvia, bells-of-Ireland and small zinnias are the flowers used in this arrangement. All of them may be dried just as arranged or, of course, they can be dried separately.

An arrangement of fresh flowers that could just as easily be an arrangement of dried flowers is a feat that any arranger would be proud to duplicate. And, if the right annuals are selected, it's not really hard.

Choose from among a list that includes blue salvia, red salvia, cockscombs, bells of Ireland, zinnias, marigolds, straw flowers, larkspur, and many other commonly grown garden flowers. Every one of those mentioned can be dried either in or out of an arrangement.

If this is a new idea to you — that of arranging first and drying later, be advised that it can be done.

But, because accidents can happen, be sure to also dry extra spikes or individual blooms of each kind of flower you use in the arrangement. And discard the leaves before arranging the blooms, since leaves rarely dry attractively or without crumbling.

There are several methods in general use for drying flowers — sand, silica-jell, cornstarch are all used heaped under and around flowers carefully placed in flat boxes. But the oldest method of drying is still the easiest — and in many cases as satisfactory as any — for the flowers named.

That is simply stripping leaves from stems, tying a few stems together at their bases, and hanging the tied bunches upside down from a line strung in any warm, dry place. In a few weeks the blooms will be ready for use — or for storage.

To dry a whole arrangement, first choose a warm, dry spot that is out of household traffic. Put a little water in the container so that the flowers dry gradually. Select those with sturdy stems and arrange them without leaves.

Let the arrangement stand for a few weeks. Do not add any water; that in the container will gradually evaporate as the flowers gradually dry. Then move the arrangement where you wish to display it and enjoy it.

Fr. Fayed - Chairman Baseball League

The most Rev. Fr. Samuel Fayed has accepted the request by the Agawam Interchurch Baseball League governing board to fill in the roll of honorary chairman at its eighth annual banquet. The banquet is to be held at the Agawam High School Nov. 10th.

Fr. Fayed who has been rector at St. Anthony of Padua Church for the past two years hails his Church team as national Division Champs.

Prior to taking his post as rector at St. Anthony's Fr. Fayed was director of the foreign mission board at the provincial house in Spfld.

The banquet this year as in the past will be honoring many individual players, including the leagues most valuable, and the most valuable player from each team. The playoff trophy, the Fr. O'Keefe award is also to be presented to the Divisional playoff champs.

The banquet also has the purpose to present to players who have played with the league and gone on to school, $100.00 scholarships. This year a record in the leagues eight years of 5 $100.00 scholarships are to be presented.

Ag. Jr. Women Sponsor Children's Films

The first in the series of special film presentations for the children of Agawam, sponsored by the Agawam Jr. Women's Club, will be presented at the Jr. High School on Sat. Oct. 19 at 1:30 P.M.

The feature film is a story about a boy who lives with his uncle, the warden of an East African game preserve. The last existing rhino there is a friendly animal until the time she is wounded by hunters. She then becomes dangerous to the community and the warden feels she must be killed. With skill and imagination, at great risk to himself, the boy manages to save the rhino's life. In addition to this film, there will be two short subjects: The entire show will have a running time of one and one half hours.

Tickets will be sold at the door at one P.M.

Watering your plants

The beautiful dry weather that homeowners have been enjoying for the past two months may be very damaging to their trees and shrubs according to the Massachusetts Nurserymen's Association. They caution homeowners who have not been watering their plants on a regular basis that problems may arise if they do not start watering immediately.

Proper watering methods are important. A good, deep soaking once a week around each tree and shrub is more beneficial than frequent light waterings and actually conserves water too.

The soil under favorite trees should be soaked two feet or deeper. This deep watering can be done at home by a trickling hose which is attached to a root irrigator or which is laid in an open hole made with a bar or pipe. Several hours may be needed to soak the soil thoroughly. Some nurserymen suggest one deep watering hole for each two inches of trunk diameter, so six holes would be used to water a tree with a twelve-inch trunk.

Large evergreens should be given the same deep watering required by shade and flowering trees. They may need it later in the fall because their needles will evaporate water all winter, even when the soil has frozen. Roots of smaller evergreens in foundation plantings are closer to the soil surface so they will benefit now from hose, sprinkler, or soaker applications.

Deep watering will maintain the health of existing evergreens and prepare the soil for safe plantings of new plants this fall. Deep watering of landscape plantings is an inexpensive investment in home beauty for next year.

Consumer news

A recent auto ad read, "The next time a used car salesman says that the car he wants to sell you is 'just like new', ask him to put in writing." This statement was accompanied by pictures showing the expression on a salesman's face changing from a jolly one to one of shock.

While the Consumer Protection Division never endorses a particular product, we are always happy to pass along good advice from any source.

Great care should be exercised in buying a second hand car. Even with the stringent consumer laws which Mass. has, knowing the problems you may encounter is the best protection against an unhappy purchase.

For example, people have written to us stating, "I bought a used car from the XYZ Co. When I took it to my gas station it failed to pass the safety tests and they put a rejection sticker on it. I've been cheated!"

Investigation of such complaints usually reveals that the car was sold "as is" and that the buyer did not understand what was meant by the term. When you buy a car "as is", whatever problems or difficulties arise after the purchase are your responsibility and yours alone.

Just suppose that the salesman did, in fact, tell you that the car was in great shape and that it could last you 10 years. Unless he put it in writing, it's your word against his.

Fortunately many used cars still have mileage left on their original warranty; or a dealer will offer a partial warranty on a used car. This does not mean, that every problem which occurs will be taken care of by the dealer. What is does mean is that the dealer will do the things he promises to do in the warranty. For example, a "50-50, thirty-day warranty of power train" means the dealer will cover one-half the cost of repairing those parts of the car which are in the power train (engine, transmission, rear end), if a problem arises within 30 days of purchase of the car and if you notify him promptly. It does not mean that he has to fix a broken spring, a squeaky door, or replace a mirror.

Many people believe that the law requires all used cars to be fit to pass the Registry inspection. This is not so. Several bills have been filed in the General Court for this purpose, but all have so far failed to pass.

When you buy a car, as with other purchases, compare, compare, compare! If the salesman makes claims about the car, get them in writing. If he refuses, don't worry about losing the "buy of a lifetime." The auto industry is very competitive and another dealer who is willing to put his promises in writing will probably give you a better "buy".

Remember that you as a consumer have a great deal of control over sales practices. The educated consumer who uses his buying power wisely can force changes in sales practices and is one of the strongest forces in the market place.

For consumer problems, write: Attorney General Elliot Richardson, Consumer Protection Division, State House, Boston, 02133.
